St. Louis, March 7.

Captain Hopkins, well known here before the war as a river captain, arrived Saturday from Mobile 13 a mile.

He says there were but eight thousand troops at Mobile, and he thought the fortifications in the rear of the city were good. They could be carried by a large force. Sherman's movement frightened the people terribly, but desperate resistance would be made had he attacked the city.

cent, until six months previous to the first semi-annual dividend.

6. Vessels, freight and mails of the United States to be free of tolls.

7. The company to be limited to six per cent. dividends in specie or its equivalent, and to be prohibited from paying dividends on stock in regard to durability and economy. Four per cent. to be raised as a sinking fund, to be used to buy in the stock, which will make the navigation of the river free of tolls for expenses and repairs, within twenty years.

8. If the company shall see proper to dam the river, they may so construct the dams as to be able to raise the water to the level of the navigation, having power to levy reasonable tolls.

thereon, and may rent out water, &c.

The 21 corporations named in the bill shall be organized by the directors and appointed, which shall be as follows: Six shall be appointed by the Legislatures of the six States of Ohio, to wit: Hamilton, Adams, Franklin, Madison, Montgomery and Warren, the Ohio having the most stock, and 5 others in the usual mode. They shall elect one of their number President and have the election of the directors.

10. The U.S. District courts to have original jurisdiction in all cases of litigation between the company and individuals.

11. The company to be furnished with any copies of surveys on file at Washington that may be useful to them.

13. The Limestone Canal to be transferred to the Government, and made free of tolls, and the same to be approved by the Legislatures of the States upon the river, and when the plans for the improvement of the same shall be approved by the sanction of two-thirds of the Legislature of those States before the works of the company (except surveys, &c.) shall commence.

Apprehension of a Raid by Morgan.

[SUNDAY NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.]

KNOXVILLE, March 6.

Scouts report that Longstreet has shipped his wagons by train to Richmond, and is moving his men, horses and mules, and is pressing all the animals that can be found.

Rebel cavalry are still scouring the country south and east of the city, and have appeared yesterday in the French Broad, near the meeting of Big Pigeon. Some apprehension is felt of a raid by Morgan on our railroad communications with Chattanooga.

NEW YORK, March 6.

The Times special gives the following additional statements as to the results, etc., of Kilpatrick's raid: Miles of railroad track on the principal roads over which Lee transports his supplies for the Northern army of Virginia have been so thoroughly destroyed that some time will elapse before the roads can be put in order again. Depots of commissary, ordnance and quartermaster stores were burned or destroyed. No less than six grist mills and one saw mill, principally at work for the rebel army, were burned, and the sawmills loaded with grain, the canal locks on James river canal, and almost invaluable coal pits at Manassas and elsewhere were burned.

Three hundred prisoners were captured, several hundred horses pressed into service, and hundreds of negroes were freed. The raid has given the following account of the course of the expedition after leaving Richmond is of interest.

At night the command went into camp at a place a mile from Richmond, and two miles from the Chickahominy river. The next morning the command was fairly asleep—except those on duty—the rebels opened a two-gun battery upon the camp from a distance of about one mile, and immediately after charged the camp and the Seventh Michigan. The men, though taken entirely by surprise, seized their carbines, and under Colonel Litchell's leadership, the First Vermont, Colonel Preston, handsomely repulsed the enemy. Several men were wounded, and Colonel Litchell, who is "it," is it feared, also wounded.

Kilpatrick decided to move across the Chickahominy river, and to strike the Second New York, with the bulk of Dahlgren's cavalry, rejoined the main body.

The enemy all day Tuesday and Wednesday night and Wednesday morning harassed the command. Skirmishing was almost constantly going on in different directions. On Wednesday morning about nine o'clock a large force of cavalry came upon the rear of the column. General Kilpatrick was "crossed" for this, and decided to "retire" to the front.

First Vermont, under Lieutenant Colonel Preston, aided by Captain Grant and Cummings, and the Maine, bore the brunt of the attack, which lasted something over an hour, while the Sixth Michigan and other regiments of General Davis' brigade were in position to repulse the enemy's advance.

Only one charge was made, which was made by company A, First Maine, led by Captain Bruce, A. A. G., and Captain Cole, when five of the enemy were captured. The enemy suddenly retired. When the command moved forward and the rebels retreated, and several times an offer of battle was made, they refused it.

On this day (Wednesday) several refugees from Richmond came into camp and reported that Captain Wilson, of the Second Ohio, had escaped from the rebels, and that the rebels were at hand, but for some reason, he did not join his command.

On Wednesday Lieutenant Whitaker was sent to destroy the railroad station on the White House railroad, but, upon arriving there, much to his surprise, he found the place in flames. From the report it was ascertained that a column of Union cavalry from Butler's department had just left there. This was the first indication of success being so near at hand.

As the night advanced, the command moved toward New Kent Courthouse. On the way met Col. Spear, in command of a cavalry force, looking for Kilpatrick's command.

NEW YORK, March 6.

The steamer Ellen S. Perry, from Newbern, on the 1st, arrived this evening. Our Newbern letter, it is stated, that Jeff Davis has expressed the Raleigh Standard, thus increasing the surmise of the editor's election for Governor next fall.

The rebels are removing the obstruction in the Neuse river, below Kingston, in order to allow the iron-plated ram to come down to assist in the attack on Newbern, Washington and Plymouth, for which the rebels are making great preparations. A ram is also said to be ready on the Neuse.

The Raleigh Confederate states that the recent attack on Newbern was only a diversion, soon to be followed by a major operation. It urges the necessity of changing the battle ground from Virginia to North Carolina.

Official intelligence confirms the report that Jeff Davis ordered the immediate seizure of all points now held by the Federalists in North Carolina. Gen. Kock has made all the preparations in his power, and all citizens and firemen are under orders to go into fortification.

The hanging by the rebels of twenty-three men of the Second North Carolina white regiment has excited the loyal States beyond all bounds, and they have resolved to take no more prisoners.

St. Louis, March 6.

The statement made by the Washington correspondent of the New York Commercial, that Sherman was at Vicksburg on the 24th ult., and that he will soon start on his expedition, is a great mistake. None of Sherman's forces have reached Jackson on the 24th, and Vicksburg, which is the only place beyond the Mississippi where Sherman's army is, is not yet in his power, and all citizens and firemen are under orders to go into fortification.

NEW YORK, March 6.

New Orleans advices to February 27th are received per the Columbia and George Cromwell.

Admiral Farragut continued his attack on the forts below Mobile. A letter from our fleet, dated the 23d, says that the whole mortar fleet kept up an incessant fire on Forts Morgan and Powell, and that the rebels were making desperate attempts to stop the shells.

The rebel ram Tennessee was off Fort Morgan, and was expected to attack our fleet. She is said to be more powerful than the Merrimack, and was expected to hold out long against our batteries.

Admiral Farragut was on board the Calhoun, near the fort. Our regiments, from Trecho, were daily being sent to New Orleans, and are being sent on transports to co-operate with Farragut.

Forty-five rebel prisoners had escaped from the customhouse at New Orleans. Ten or twelve were recaptured.

There was an extensive fire at Pensacola on the 18th. The town was believed to have been destroyed by the rebels, who were under the impression that our forces decided to occupy the town soon.

The Eighteenth New York cavalry had arrived at New Orleans.

Gen. Banks reviewed the artillery and cavalry at Carrollton on the 27th.

Col. Chickering, of the Third Massachusetts cavalry, has been ordered to New Orleans, and is being sent on transports to co-operate with Farragut.
